Perssons Sexa releases their debut album! The material consists of original compositions by Jens Persson, saxophone player and composer from Malmö. Joining him on the record are some of the most exciting young and upcoming musicians in Sweden.

Perssons Sexa is a group that is constantly searching. They play music inspired by their surroundings in search of musical identity. The inspiration comes from people like Francis Bacon, David Lynch, Kristina Lugn and musicians and bands involved in all kinds of genres, but most of all it is a reflection of their own lives. The album consists of a coherent piece of music in six parts, or a suite if you will.

- It feels great to have completed the process from small musical ideas in the rehearsal room to a complete album, an album that we are very proud of! says Kristoffer Rostedt, the bands drummer.

The members doesn't want to talk too much about the music. They prefer the listener to hear for themselves and paint their own image of what the music is.

- Interpretation and relating to oneself are important parts of enjoying music, so let your imagination flow. I know what the music means to me, but what does it mean to you? says Jens Persson.
